CARDIAC SURGERY COMPANY JOINS KENSHO GROUP CLIENT BASE
Medical Device Search Firm Acquires New Cardiac Client

Aug. 17, ALLENTOWN, Pa.—The Kensho Group, a medical device executive search firm, today announced the acquisition of a new cardiac medical device client and the addition of two new search assignments.

The Kensho Group's new client is a leading developer of cardiac surgery products, and a rising power in this $2.5 billion dollar market. The global company is headquartered in Minnesota and is focusing its next-generation product development efforts in two categories: heart valve therapy and surgical cardiac ablation. The client's minimally invasive cardiac valve line aims to penetrate what industry experts consider to be the next blockbuster area in the cardiology market.

"We're pleased to partner with this cardiac surgery client," remarked Jay Kshatri, president of The Kensho Group. "An already competitive player in the up-and-coming cardiac valve market, it is clients like this that give us the opportunity to do what we do best: advance the goals of forward-thinking companies in the medical device space by matching exceptional candidates with the right opportunities."

The Kensho Group has been contracted to assist the development of the client's Clinical team. It is conducting searches for a Clinical Research Associate and a Field Clinical Engineer. For more information or to apply for candidacy for either of these roles, visit The Kensho Group's current client job openings at www.thekenshogroup.com.
