KENSHO GROUP SIGNS NEW OPHTHALMIC CLIENT
Glaucoma Startup Joins Medical Device Search Firm's Client Roster

June 21, ALLENTOWN, Pa.—The Kensho Group, a medical device executive search firm, announces the addition of a new ophthalmic company to its client base. The client, a medical device startup in Northern California, has also asked The Kensho Group to conduct four clinical search assignments.

The private, venture-backed client is developing a treatment for Glaucoma, which affects an estimated four million in the U.S. and 70 million globally. It is working to address this billion dollar market through the research and development of new devices and a less-invasive procedure for the treatment of Glaucoma. Current Glaucoma therapies have been called “highly limited” by experts in the field and are only considered feasible solutions for a limited number of those affected by the disease, which is the leading cause of adult irreversible blindness.

Jay Kshatri, President of the Kensho Group, said, “We’re very excited to work with this client. The Kensho Group’s extensive experience recruiting in the ophthalmic space will be an asset to our partnership.”

The Kensho Group has been issued search assignments by the client to conduct searches for several Clinical positions, including a Vice President of Clinical and Regulatory Affairs, a Clinical Applications Specialist, and In-House and Regional Clinical Research Associates.
